ARTICLE 6.

To participate in the Center as an active member, it is necessary to be willing to adhere strictly to these General Regulations of the Order.

ARTICLE 7.

ARTICLE 8.

Only the Foundation Members have the right of discussion and vote in the Council. Active members have the right to vote only in the General Assemblies.

ARTICLE 9.

The Principal Center must be by preference at the political capital of the nation, unless the Inspector General choses another city and there where the Inspector General resides will be the Head-Center.

ARTICLE 10.

All the other Centers, groups or sub-groups which can be formed in the same nation will be under the immediate obedience of the Inspector General and they must pay to him their rights of admission.

The Order is composed of five classes of members, namely:

1. Foundation Members.
2. Active Members.
3. Members of Merit.
4. Corresponding Members.
5. Honorary Members.

ARTICLE 12.

The Foundation Members are those who have the sole right to participate in the administration of the Center. They meet in general assembly when it is ordered by the Inspector General.

ARTICLE 13.

All the Foundation Members, without exception, are held according to their respective ability, to make a voluntary offering in order to commence the work of the Center.

In case of dissolution of the Center the profits which may exist belong only to the Foundation Members; the losses also encumber them and are divided by the General Delegate in proportion to the offering of each one.

ARTICLE 14.

The Foundation Members must also pay in advance the monthly dues, the amount of which will be fixed by the Directing Council.

The title of Foundation Member, and the prerogatives attached to it, can never be lost excepting through some grave fault; this will be judged by the Directing Council, constituting a tribunal, and which will pass sentence on it.

ARTICLE 15.

By virtue of their title the Foundation Members are required to see that the general regulations of the Order are respected; they must be therefore the first to obey the orders of the Supreme Council, transmitted by their Inspectors and their General Delegates, because example and discipline are the fundamentals of Oriental Esoterism.

ARTICLE 16.

Active Members are those who are accepted in the Order after having passed an examination of initiation before the Directing Council. They have the right to assist at the work of the Center, but have not the right to vote except in the general assemblies. ARTICLE 24.

Each request for admission must have the signature of a member of the Center who holds himself responsible for the candidate and of his payment of the rights of admission as they will have been established by the Directing Council.

ARTICLE 25.

No one can be admitted to take part in the Center unless he obtains the unanimous voice of the Directing Council, gathered together in Assembly of the Founders. The vote will be secret, cast by means of a white ball (for admission) and black for withholding. One black ball will hold back the admission of a candidate.

ARTICLE 28.

If on the first ballot there are one or more black balls (negative) the President of the Center will ask for a second vote during the following week. If this second count still contains unfavorable votes the President will proceed to a third vote during the week which follows the second.

This last decision will be final and if the candidate is not accepted the Secretary will advise the refused postulant in such correct terms as will tell him tactfully of his refusal.

ARTICLE 29.

When a member of the Center renders himself subject to a reproach or to a punishment, following a grave fault, the President will communicate with the Inspector General, who will decide whether or not there should be a meeting of the tribunal.

By the new decree of the Supreme Council only five General Delegates exist in the West, and they do not recognize any other authority than that of the Supreme Council and the General Inspectors.

ARTICLE 120.

The Delegates of each Center are the officers of the General Inspection and they will not obey other authority than that of the General Delegates and the Inspectors representing the Order; never the Presidents.

ARTICLE 121.

The branches, the Centers and the Delegations which may be founded in small localities, will be under the direct dependence of the Head-Center or of the Inspection, even if only one Delegation exists.

ARTICLE 122.

No branch or Center or any Delegation can legally function if it has not made a regular request of the General Inspection and if it has not satisfied its rights of admission and the requisites demanded by the Constitution of the Order.

ARTICLE 123.

No member of the Order, no matter of what degree, can belong to any secret association, sectarian or political.

ARTICLE 124.

The Masonic Order, legally constituted and recognized by the government of the nation where the member resides, are excepted.

ARTICLE 125.

The member discovered serving another association will be immediately expelled from the Order, and the decree of the Inspection will be published in the Official Journal of the Order, to the end that the Delegates of all countries take notice.

ARTICLE 126.

The same expulsion will happen to members who become guilty of treason to the Order and they will lose all inherent rights and titles of their rank.

ARTICLE 127.

Members who would not obey these General Regulations will be suspended, the first time from all work, and if they repeat, will be eliminated from the Order. The General Inspectors and the General Delegates are charged with the execution of these present orders.
